

The Swedish Internet Foundation's privacy policy for the domain name register for .nu

(The Swedish version of this privacy policy shall prevail).

The definitions for this policy are to be found in The Swedish Internet Foundation's Registration Terms and Conditions as applicable at any time.

Since September 2013, The Swedish Internet Foundation is responsible for the operation of the top-level domain .nu according to agreement ("the .nu agreement").

Processing of personal data

Pursuant to current data protection legislation and the .nu agreement, The Swedish Internet Foundation is responsible for processing your personal data in the Domain Name Register.

The personal data (first and last name, personal identity number, address, phone number and email address) that you disclose in connection with domain name registration are saved until further notice as there is a legitimate interest to maintain traceability in the Domain Name Register.

Purposes and legal basis for processing

The purpose of The Swedish Internet Foundation processing your personal data is to comply with the agreement with you (applicable Terms and Conditions), to provide and operate the Domain Name Register and to comply with other obligations under the .nu agreement.

The data may be processed to develop The Swedish Internet Foundation's operations, as well as to maintain good customer and registry care, which means that the data may be combined with other registries.

In order for The Swedish Internet Foundation to process your personal data, there must be a legal basis for the processing. Under the .nu agreement, The Swedish Internet Foundation is obliged to maintain the Domain Name Register and there is therefore a contractual obligation for The Swedish Internet Foundation to collect and to process your personal data. Furthermore, The Swedish Internet Foundation must fulfil its obligations under the agreement between The Swedish Internet Foundation and you (applicable Terms and Conditions). Processing of personal data for the Domain Holder's contacts is processed on the legal basis of legitimate interest.

Recipient of personal data

In order for The Swedish Internet Foundation to fulfil its obligations under the .nu agreement, and the agreement made with you, a third party and personal data assistant may have access to your personal data. The Swedish Internet Foundation may also collect data about you from these parties in order to fulfil its commitments.

For example, The Swedish Internet Foundation cooperates with the following third parties or personal data assistants.

- Infrastructure providers and secondary name server operators to ensure the operation of the Domain Name Register.
- Supplier of national census information to collect information about you and to ensure that your address information is correct.
- Survey company for customer surveys.

The Swedish Internet Foundation also collaborates with resellers (registrars) for the sale and performance of registration services under agreement between The Swedish Internet Foundation and the registrar. The Swedish Internet Foundation receives personal data from the registrars in order to establish a correct Domain Name Registry. The Swedish Internet Foundation discloses personal data to these registrars, for example, where they have registered a Domain Name according to an agreement with you, if a Domain Name is to be transferred to another, or to ensure proper information about the Domain Holder.

Certain third parties or personal data assistants may have their operations outside Sweden or the EU/EEA. If The Swedish Internet Foundation transfers data to such third parties or personal data assistants, The Swedish Internet Foundation ensures, for example by agreement, that they process and protect personal data as required under personal data legislation.

Disclosure

The Swedish Internet Foundation's Domain Name Registry is made available on the internet through a domain name search service (WHOIS). If the Domain Holder, or the contact person of a legal person (a company), is a natural person or individual trader, no personal data is published on the internet unless the Domain Holder or the contact person explicitly requests it.

If you choose to register a domain name containing your personal data, this domain name will appear in WHOIS.

As the domain name administrator, The Swedish Internet Foundation is required to ensure that the public can access the contact information in the Domain Name Register. Personal data may therefore be disclosed if someone requests this. The Swedish Internet Foundation may also disclose personal data where this is prescribed by law or regulation, due to an ongoing legal process or following a mandatory request by a government authority. The data that is then disclosed is normally the data required to identify and/or contact a Domain Holder.

Your rights

You have the right to request registry extracts containing the personal data that The Swedish Internet Foundation is processing about you.

You have the right to request a change to data that is incorrect. You also have the right to request that your personal data is deleted or its use restricted, but there must then be support for this under the relevant data protection legislation.

You also have the right to object to any processing of personal data if this is provided by law. If your personal information is processed solely with your consent, you always have the right to withdraw such consent.

You may also request such information that you have provided to be disclosed to you in a structured, widely used and machine-readable format.

To request correction, deletion, restriction of processing, access to personal data or to use the right to extract data that you yourself have provided, you contact The Swedish Internet Foundation's Data Protection Officer, dataskyddsbud@internetstiftelsen.se.
